A BOLD PEACE

Costa Rica's Path of Demilitarization

Seventy years ago, Costa Rica became the largest nation in the world to disband their military. They redirected national resources towards public education and universal health care, prioritizing the people and fostering a wide middle class. It has earned the number one ranking of countries based on measures of environmental protection and the happiness and health of its citizens. This documentary examines the true value of nonviolence as a defense policy and shows another way the world may live. [2016, 89 min]
